Inspection Report

- (2) Primary enclosures must be constructed and maintained so that they:
 - (i) Have no sharp points or edges that could injure the nonhuman primates.

The wooden resting shelf for the celebs is ripped apart at the front left corner exposing splintered and sharp wood. This must be repaired or replaced to protect the animals from injury.

Correct by: 07-14-12.

PRIMARY ENCLOSURES.

Primary enclosures for nonhuman primates must meet the following minimum requirements:

(a) General requirements. (1) Primary enclosures must be designed and constructed of suitable materials so that they are structurally sound for the species of nonhuman primates contained in them. They must be kept in good repair.

(2) Primary enclosures must be constructed and maintained so that they:

- (i) Have no sharp points or edges that could injure the nonhuman primates;
- (ii) Protect the nonhuman primates from injury;
- (iii) Contain the nonhuman primates securely and prevent accidental opening of the enclosure, including opening by the animal;
- (iv) Keep other unwanted animals from entering the enclosure or having physical contact with the nonhuman primates.

The red ruffed lemurs are able to stick their entire heads through the chain mesh of their enclosure. This was witnessed during the inspection. This must be addressed to protect the animals from injury and to prevent other animals from having physical contact with the nonhuman primates.

Correct by: 07-31-12.

An exit briefing was conducted with the Animal Caretaker.
